

Course: Women in leadership: inspiring positive change
Assignment 1B: Values and leadership vision exercise
Name: Klaas Joris Schut

The area in which I want my leadership to best contribute is in the field of education. Being a teacher and educational scientist gives me the tools to become a leader in this field. The core purpose of my leadership is to help others to reach their full potential as so many suffer because they cannot reach this. My leadership serves my peers (at this moment) and my organization as well as others that want to develop themselves (in the future). I do so by organizing events where we can learn from each other. The leader I want to be is the person who is approachable and you can ask a question to regardless who you are and what your background is. Through my leadership, we will be able to become the best version of who we can be and play an active role in society. This is the ultimate goal as I strongly believe the world can become a better place this way. My leadership will be recognized by a very deep knowledge of personal development combined with a rich experience in the educational sector. This combination will make that I am able to connect with individuals to understand their problems and coach them towards their full potential.
